sensed an equally inodorous condition of affairs in his neighborhood from the exhaust of an automobile with too rich a mixture.

If our Legislature is to be merely a means to enact into law the wishes or plans of our high officials to the exclusion of those without the charmed circle, can't a more expeditious and economical plan than what we now have be devised? On the other hand if it is to remain the "forum of the people" the officials must give heed, especially when its Session is entitled to being designated by the Governor as the "best Legislature yet."

In the matter of the Hanalei wharf, we are informed that the representatives of the people authorized an appropriation from the current revenues, rather than the lean fund, in order to expedite its immediate construction, as was also the case with the Mahukona wharf, so we are inclined to discredit the rumors respecting the attitude of our high officials, but as public opinion on Kauai is in favor of the construction of this wharf at an early date, we shall be interested in watching the development of events.

We have a "crack-a-jack" County Engineer and Board of Supervisors who, if the Territorial government will pass the buck, can arrange to build that wharf before the autumn breezes scatter the pollen of the cane tassels on the road, but we don't want any of Promising Marston's evasive and facetious promises to the effect that it will be built "before the snow flies" for snow is as scarce in Hanalei as has been a wharf so far as the oldest inhabitant can testify.

We are a long suffering lot of "Little Islanders" but whether it was for better or for worse, County Government was our remedy for the disregard of the rights of the people under the old regime, so in the language of the ant to the elephant upon that memorable morning when Noah was getting his tribe in out of the wet, we say to the Superintendent of Public Works "stop your shoving" and see to the erection of the Hanalei wharf.

Local News

From Saturday's Record.

W. F. Frost is at the Hotel Fairview.

Rev. Hans Isenberg and Sheriff Rice are on a business trip to Waimea to-day.

A large number of Kauai's school children returned by the Kinau this morning.

Tommy O'Brien, the genial representative of the Von Hamm-Young Co., has added another prize to our list of prizes for the field day sports, the prize being a beautiful five dollar sweater. This is one of the most useful prizes offered and will certainly be appreciated by the winner.

IT IS GENTLY WHISPERED

That Paul Schmidt is champion traveling man bowler of the island.

That he never missed a shot when the traveling men were at the bowling alley.

That one other traveling man never missed a drink.

That Frost left very early saying that he was going home.

That he should know the rest of the traveling men stay at the hotel.

That Frost and Gus Prescott have their hair cut and parted in the same manner.

That Gus can only wear his t shirt one way.

That Tom O'Brien is making a very long trip on Kauai.

That his trips were never so extended before he was married.

That Gus Prescott is a natural born poet.

That he will donate a small poem in this issue.

That Dick Oliver's birthday party last trip was one great success.

That no one was seriously injured.

That one traveling man placed all his clothes on the bed and tried to go to bed on the chair.

That it is not necessary to mention names.

That every one knows it was not Sid Spitzer.

That some of the traveling boys say that they enjoyed watching the basket ball game far better than they did the baseball game at Koloa.

That the most enthusiastic one is married.

That we do not mention names in this matter but Paul Schmidt should know better.

That Lee Austin never carries a hammer as a sample.

That he is no knocker.

That he made a quick trip this time.

That he has not been out late nights this trip.

That Mrs. Austin is spending a vacation on Kauai.

That 'nough' said.

That Robinson the directory man is with us.

That there is in all twelve traveling men on Kauai at present.

That it is a good opportunity for Kauai to take census.

That Robinson should know as he is the population systematizer.

That Charlie Herrick says he had a dry trip.

That every one on the island knows it has been raining.

That Charlie is not always talking about the weather.

That Editor Bridgewater is one good feller.

That it is too bad he cannot find a more honorable and useful vocation.

That he did not learn to write from a correspondence school.

That he can write some and that he thoroughly learnt the paper business from a news boy up.

That his office would be a good location for a small side line of merchandise.

That all the boys would extend him a small credit.

That he could wrap up his sales in his newspapers.

That there would then be something in his paper.

That as the Kinau will be over crowded this trip, it is hoped that no one will be timid in asking the purser to let him have a drummer's room.

That not one of the boys care for a berth.

That it is a pleasure to sleep on deck for a drummer.

That a drummer's work is only a round of pleasure.

The Latest In Poetry

(By Gus Prescott, Poeter)

Yes, I am Gus Prescott.

Am I a poet?

Don't you know it?

If I had the time,

And a bottle of wine,

I could rhyme every line

Do I ever renig?

Do I look like I'm dead?

I am Sir Gus Prescott—

Renig? Well, I guess not!

A Traveling Man's Dream

By Sid Spitzer, member Associated Press of Kauai.

All is quiet, and a traveling man is seen approaching one of the best and largest stores on the island of Kauai. As his wagon stops before the door, the store-keeper comes rushing out and embraces him, and says: "Bring your samples right in! I have been waiting for you. That last shipment I bought was sold as we were unpacking it from the cases. I never saw any better goods than those you represent. I intend giving you four times the order this trip. I am glad you did not pass us by."

He assists the drummer in unloading the trunks from the wagon and they drag them into the store. The traveling man stops to open a case where the most profitable samples are kept and on arising, bumps his elbows upon one of his other trunks which is standing close by, and awakens.

It is only a dream!

Little Fitz Ruff

head to the tip of his tail.

But from Farmer Gile's caress, Fitzie soon learned to hide.

It was Tibby who changed Fitz Ruff from a dainty, lazy conceited kitten into a cat any house might be proud of.

Tibby had no claims to beauty. She had never won a medal, for the time has yet to come when medals are given for genuine honest worth. She didn't even know that such things existed.

She stalked into the kitchen the day after Fitz Ruff's arrival and spat violently at him. Then she approached a little nearer. Fitz Ruff mew-ed pathetically; he longed for sympathy. Tibby arched her ugly yellow back and spat more violently still, then, seeing that Fitzie made no attempts at attack, she drew nearer and slapped his poor travel-stained face.

Now Fitzie's pride had all been washed away in the rains of yesterday, and his spirits damped and quenched by the mud through which he had wandered. And so he did not return Tibby's rough greeting, but drew back, and there was such a look of loneliness in his eyes that Tibby, who really was the kindest creature, took pity on him.

She graciously allowed herself to drink the milk which had been put beside him, and after a decent interval, during which she took stock of him, she introduced him to the stable. Then impressed by his reception of the hay loft, she led him to a far corner, where her treasures lay hidden.

Fitz Ruff was distinctly unnerved at the sight of the four mewling, writhing, blind and altogether hideous treasures, but he hid his feelings, like the true gentleman he was.

Next day Tibby caught a mouse, while the little Persian kitten looked on, quivering with excitement. Two hours later Fitz Ruff caught the brother of Tibby's mouse.

That night Fitz Ruff fell asleep in the hidden corner where mother Tibby cuddled her treasures.

It was Tibby's motherly tongue washed Fitz Ruff's matted coat and made him look almost as beautiful, when his dear mistress drove up to the farm in search of him, as the day she lost him.

Yet he never got the chance to say goodbye to mother Tibby when he drove away in the red motor car. But he often grows pensive as he looks at the friendly fire and thinks of her and the things she taught him.

There are hardly any mice now in the house where Fitz Ruff blinks at the fire from the white hearth-rug.

Rev. Mr. Meritt Lectures In Waimea

(Special to the Garden Island)

WAIMEA, June 20.—Reverend Meritt delivered a very interesting address to the Waimea people, in the Waimea Church last Wednesday evening. He encouraged them to join in the church and Sunday School work to better themselves and their children. In part he said:

"I am very glad to see that Mr. Rice is the President of the Kauai Sunday Schools, and also superintending the work of the Board of Education also to learn that his interest in educational as well as religious work has been the silver thread that enabled your fathers, mothers and children on this island to make good church workers. Since my last stay in Hawaii nei about fourteen years ago I have studied how to progress the Sunday School problems. I have left the mainland to come down here and solve the Sunday School problems. We wanted to learn what your problems are. I am very happy to see the Hawaiian Union, Japanese, Chinese and Portuguese Sunday Schools in here tonight. Oh, how I wish I could talk the Hawaiian language. I suppose Mr. Rice will translate my thoughts for those who will not understand me. Before I speak, I want to know how many Sunday School superintendents, teachers and scholars are here tonight."

The audience respectfully raised their hands to meet his demand.

"I have found that Mr. Rice is as old as I am. I want to tell you all that nobody can get along without the Bible. We all need that book. Every one needs a Bible, and I would like to spend a little time to talk with these boys and girls. I know they love Jesus, and wanted to go to church. I want you children to have your Sunday School lessons thoroughly learned as well as you learn your lessons in the public schools. There are three things that I want you boys and girls to do. First: go to Sunday School on time with your lessons learned. Second: get your Bible by saving your pennies which your papa and mamma will give you, and get the habit of reading it. Third: I want every boy and girl to get the habit of kneeling down and pray. It is real rude not to thank Mr. Akina for his generosity and hospitality to me. So it is the same life to God and man. Thank him in Sunday School. I am very happy you are here tonight."

To men and women he said: "Dear friends, I am here tonight to say that Hawaii nei needs each one of you to get close to the old book. We found on the mainland that father and mother thinks that they are too big to go to Sunday School. I want you fathers and mothers here tonight to go with your boys and girls to Sunday School and after Sunday School ask your children to go to church. The first thing I will ask you, won't you be interested by going to Sunday School every Sunday? You send your children to public schools to have them well educated. So they are to be sent to Sunday School and to church to be religiously educated. In the mainland, every one who learn to read this book (Bible) is the best citizen. Get your children to go to church. But first of all is to go together with them. It is necessary for teachers to know what they teach. God wants to have this old book so learned and understood so that we can teach our children. The best way to get ready is, after church and Sunday School go home and always make a rule to get a bible and read to prepare for next Sunday. Is there anybody here who does not have three meals a day? To spend three meals a day for our body, we ought to spend a little time to feed our souls by reading the bible. In weeks days have your illustrations prepared and by Sunday you will be so filled and learned with your lessons, that you don't need any book but to speak by memory."

"We are trying to help Sunday Schools in America by making it better. To help boys and girls to know God's work. And I thank you very much for coming here to night."

Hon. W. H. Rice translated the thoughts of the speaker in such a way that it interested every one who understood him. He said that he had received a letter from the secretary of the National Sunday School to visit all the churches of Kauai. Now there are eleven hundred millions of those who know the English language well. And when Queen Victoria was asked, why the English language had so greatly increased among the nations, she replied, "The Reading of the Bible," as the Bible says, "God's word is the crown for our souls, we ought to study the Bible more."
